Colliding Cars.
Owen Hart, driver of one of Mr. Priest's street cars, and John Ward, driver of a car of the Citizens' line, were placed under arrest this morning by Officer Welty, both being charged with fast driving.

The arrest grew out of the collision of the street cars on the rival lines, on the crossing near the Union depot, by which both cars were dented. Very little damage was done. Later Mr. Priest and Mr. Kinney had some trouble about a platform the Citizens' company are building, but up to the hour of going to press all is quiet on the levee.

Festival in the Country.
The congregation of the Sharon M. E. church, four miles west of Decatur, gave a festival last evening, which was largely attended, a good many people from the city being among those present.

There was a great abundance of the choicest eatables spread upon the tables, which were liberally patronized, and the sum realized must have been considerable. A tent spread in the yard afforded a good and pleasant place for conversation, and the affair was an exceedingly pleasant one in every respect.

DEATH OF GEN. J. H. MOORE.

Reception of the Sad News in Decatur—General Sorrow of the People.

A Sketch of His Life—Obituary Remarks.

Last evening soon after four o'clock the Republican extra announced to our people the sad intelligence of the death of one of our distinguished citizens, Gen. Jesse H. Moore, United States Consul at Callao, in South America. The information was contained in a cable telegram of which the following is a copy:

"Lima, Peru, July 12, 1883.
To W. C. Johns, Decatur, Ill.:
Dear father to-day.
HARRY MOORE."

The extras which were quickly circulated about the streets were generally read, and caused a feeling of unfeigned sorrow and regret to pervade the city, for the deceased, who had made Decatur his home since 1861, was personally well known to nearly all our people, who admired and loved him as a friend and a brother.

The telegram came by cable, either from Lima to Panama, thence along the coast to Vera Cruz, Mexico, thence to Galveston, Texas, and from Galveston by way of Peoria to Decatur, or by way of Valparaiso, England and New York to Peoria and Decatur. The message had a long trip either way, and as cablegrams are never dated, as they are quite expensive, it cannot be stated when the General died, but it is now known that he was a victim of yellow fever, which dread scourge has existed at Callao since early in June. As the General died of yellow fever, of course his body can never be removed, and it will remain in its last resting place in far-away South America until the resurrection morn.

The only child of the General residing in Decatur at present is Mrs. George B. Steele, to whom the information of her father's death was gently broken last evening by her husband, Major Steele, several lady friends, Mrs. F. M. Cox, Mrs. Edwin Philbrook, Mrs. A. L. Hill and others, coming in soon afterward to offer words of consolation and to perform such acts of love as the sad occasion required.

Mrs. Steele who had just awakened from a sound sleep, divined what was about to be communicated and was completely overcome with grief. Two days ago she told her husband that she was a believer in presentiments and feared that something dreadful would soon occur, though she could not tell what it would be. Her husband tried to cheer her up, and she shook off the feeling of sadness and depression.

The other members of the Moore family are the widow, Mrs. Moore, her son Harry, now at Callao, Lieutenant Charles Moore, quartermaster of the United States steamer, "Onward," which has been in quarantine off Callao, 15 miles, since early in June. The daughters, Mrs. Alice McComas and Miss Helen Moore, are at Albuquerque, New Mexico, at which place Miss Moore arrived on June 6th. Edward R. Moore is residing at Topeka, Kansas, and Dr. James F. Moore, who has been practicing medicine at Carrollton, Ill., was to have started from that city yesterday morning to locate permanently in a town in Iowa.

The other day Mrs. H. C. Johns received a letter from her daughter, Mrs. Nellie Moore, wife of Lieut. Moore, who wrote from Callao, under date of June 14th, that the yellow fever had been epidemic at that place, but that she understood its virulence had in a measure abated. She wrote that the burial of yellow fever victims occurred during the nights, and a man with a bell went ahead of the house or wagon to give the alarm of the passage of the vehicle. She also stated that Lieut. Moore spent June 2d in Callao, and returning to his ship it was placed in quarantine 15 miles out, because one of the sailors who had come ashore had died of yellow fever aboard the vessel. The ship was thoroughly cleaned, but one of the sailors retained one of the blankets used by his dead shipmate, cleaned it and used it himself. Soon afterward this sailor died of the fever, since which time those on the "Onward" have not been permitted to communicate in any manner with any body on shore. Mrs. Moore can send letters to the Lieutenant but she is not permitted to receive one from him, and hence there is no way of learning anything about those at sea. The ship is provided with provisions in a careful manner. A boat is sent out from the ship several miles and anchored. Then a boat load of provisions taken from Callao is emptied into it, and after the sailors from the shore go away, sailors from the ship come out for the supplies.

Mrs. Moore, who has an infant daughter named Nellie Johns Moore, is making her home at Callao, eight miles from Lima, with Mrs. J. H. Moore and her son Harry. The particulars of the death of the General can not be learned until about August 8th, when letters will be received from Callao by the relatives here.

The first mail steamship bound north will sail from Callao to-morrow, July 14th, and 24 days must elapse before the mail reaches New York City.

Jesse HALE MOORE was in the 67th year of his age. He was born near Lebanon, St. Clair county, Ill., on April 22, 1817. He passed his boyhood days in that county, and graduated from McKendree College at Lebanon in 1842. In September, 1842, he was united in marriage to Rachel Handley Hines, of Davis county, Ky. He began life as a school teacher. He organized and was principal of the English and German Seminary, at Quincy, Ill., which position he resigned April 23, 1856, and returned to the ministry, being stationed at Carlinville, Ill., during 1856-7, then at Jacksonville, Ill., in 1858, '59 and '60, coming to Decatur in September, 1861, taking charge of the present First M. E. Church as its pastor. He continued in this relation until he gave up his godly calling and went to the front to do battle for his country's freedom. He served bravely in the late war as Colonel of the 116th Illinois Volunteer Infantry, which regiment was ordered to the front from Camp Butler, October 11, 1862, and assigned to the second brigade second division of the Army of Kentucky Sept. 13, 1862. The regiment was in many hot fights and was bravely led by Col. Moore. The regiment was in the battles at Chickamauga and Resaca, and Gen. Thomas took occasion to make special mention of the deceased's valor. During the last year of the struggle Colonel Moore was in command of the second brigade of the first division of the Fourth Army Corps, Department of the Cumberland. On May 15, 1863, Colonel Moore was promoted and brevetted brigadier general. The regiment was massacred on the service July 15, 1865. After his return from the front, Gen. Decatur M. E. District, and in 1868 he was chosen to represent this district in Congress, and in 1870 he was re-elected our representative in the XLIII Congress. He delivered many able speeches while in Congress and was chairman of the committee on Invalid Pensions. Soon after the conclusion of his term of service in Congress, Gen. Moore was appointed Pension Agent, with headquarters at Springfield, which position he held until 1877, when the office was consolidated and located at Chicago, and Miss Ada Sweet assumed charge. The General returned to Decatur, and again entered the ministry, where he remained up to 1881, when he was appointed United States Consul at Callao, Peru, by the late President Garfield, and sailed from New York with his family on July 2d, the same day that the cowardly assassin shot Mr. Garfield.

Gen. Moore was a man of much more than ordinary ability. His mind was active and always clear, and he possessed a breadth of view which gave him peculiar fitness for the field of politics, as well as fondness for its alluring activities. If he had entered the political arena at an earlier age he would undoubtedly have achieved much greater prominence than he did.

As a public speaker he was always interesting and instructive, and often rose to the sublime heights of eloquence. During political campaigns his services were always in demand, and as a campaigner he had few equals in Illinois. In his official capacity he was laborious, painstaking and efficient wherever he was placed, and he carried into his public relations the same lofty spirit of integrity and honor which characterized his private life. He was a proud man in the best sense of the term—proud of his own character and sincerely devoted to the estimate which he placed upon public and private honor. He was a true patriot, and gave the best evidence of his devotion to his country by willingly risking his life in its service. In his domestic relations he was a model among men, lavishing upon his family a wealth of affection such as is rarely witnessed. Indeed, in every relation of life Gen. Moore was a model man, and his death will be mourned by all who knew him, whether of his own political household or not. It is peculiarly and that his final anathema should have come to him in a foreign land, so far from the home and friends he loved so well, but it is doubtful whether his death could have been more sincerely mourned if he had been permitted to "wrap the drapery of his couch about him and lie down to pleasant dreams" among the neighbors who have honored him so often. The very fact of his death in another hemisphere, whether he had gone to represent the interests of his native land, adds to the poignancy of our grief, and his burial beneath the palms of that far-off southern land in no wise lessens the sorrow felt by his legion of friends in his old home.

THE NEWS CONFIRMED.
The following is a copy of the cable press telegram which appeared in the St. Louis and Chicago papers to-day:

LYMA, July 12.—Gen. Moore, American Consul at Callao, died last night of yellow fever. All ships are lying flags at half mast to-day.

Held to Bail.
This forenoon Godfrey Stearns, August Beards and August Schindlar, sons of Polish parents residing in the fifth ward, had an examination in Justice Curtis's court on a charge of burglary and larceny. The proof convinced the Justice that the boys had broken into a Wabash freight car on July 10th and taken therefrom a box containing medicine and drugs valued at about $15. Godfrey Stearns is less than 10 years of age, and though he testified that he was the leader of the invasion, owing to his tender age he is not amenable to the law, and he was discharged. But the other two boys are over 10 years of age, and they were held to wait the action of the December grand jury. Bail was fixed at $250 each, and the boys were taken to the county jail. The boys shed tears freely.

At Rest.
The mortal remains of the late Dr. W. L. Leforge were laid in the grave at Greenwood cemetery last evening, in the presence of a large number of sympathizing friends of the family, who gathered about the narrow resting place and mingled their tears of sorrow with those of the grief-stricken parents. The funeral took place from the Christian church, commencing at 4 o'clock. The audience room was completely filled, and about the altar were many rich floral offerings, beautiful tokens of love and affection. The services were conducted by the pastor, Elder T. W. Pinkerton, assisted by Rev. W. H. Prestley, of the Presbyterian Church, Elder John W. Tyler, and Rev. David Weitzer, of Marion. The pastor selected for his text the words "For we work by faith, not by sight," taken from First Corinthians. The discourse was one of some length and was a fitting tribute to the dead. Appropriate music for the occasion was given by the church choir led by Prof. Lutz. The remains were borne to the hearse by the pall-bearers, Messrs. Frank P. Roach, Harry Ehrman, James H. Martin, Sanford W. Lefingwell, John Ulrich and Edward Piper, and followed to the cemetery by a long funeral cortege.

The concert at the tabernacle Tuesday evening next will no doubt be well attended. Rehearsals are going on daily under the direction of Mr. Demorest, which is evidence that no pains will be spared to make the entertainment an artistic success. In addition to the best of our local talent, who are held in high esteem and are well known to all our citizens, the participants from abroad have a professional standing far superior to those who usually give concerts at popular prices. The programme is made up of pleasing numbers both artistic and popular. Some of Verdi's choicest gems will be rendered, besides songs from less potent writers. Beethoven will be interpreted by Mrs. Nellie Brady, while Prof. Foster will lend his presence to the scene and add, by his well-known skill, to the general interest. Of Mr. Demorest we know but little. He comes to us as a stranger; nevertheless he makes a bold bid for the patronage of the people of Decatur. Tickets are now on sale at the jewelry store of Curtis & Co. Reserved seats, 25 cents; general admission, 15 cts., and children under 12, 10 cts. Cheap enough, in all goodness.

REDUCTION IN PRICE.
On and after Monday, July 16th, the DAILY REPUBLICAN will be delivered to subscribers in the city at TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

All subscribers who have paid in advance will have their time extended at the reduced rate.

PERSONAL MENTION.
Rev. J. H. Noble is reported quite ill at his home at Mattoon.

Phoebe Howard will be the editor of the new Sunday paper at Danville.

Mollie Farner left for Moquequa Wednesday evening to attend a large party at the home of the Misses Prescott.

Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Small and son, who have been visiting at Belleville several days, arrived home yesterday noon.

Mrs. Theo. Bobb departed for Pennsylvania last night to visit her father, who is dangerously ill. She will be absent a month or longer.

Manager Bell, of the Decatur Singer office, arrived in the city last evening from Toledo, accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Mr. Hoffman, of the Bloomington Independent, speaking of the death of Litta, says: "The world has lost a beautiful and gentle spirit, but the other world has doubtless had sweetness added to its singing."

Leslie Greenwood, a man well known to many of the school teachers in this section, is in the Chicago jail, charged with embezzlement by the Maxwell book firm. Greenwood confesses his guilt. His downfall is traceable to speculating in options.

Professor J. N. Wilkinson got home from the meeting of State Principals at Lake Bluff this morning. A severe storm passed over Gibson last night, blowing down the new opera house at that town and doing other damage. The Professor says he heard of no damage this side of Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Childs, who have spent some two months in Decatur, introducing the patent pillow sham holder, laid to-day for Rockford. During their stay here Mr. and Mrs. Childs made many friends, by their suavity of manner and their close attention to business, who will be glad to hear of their success in whatever place their lot may be cast.

Dr. E. W. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Close, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Davis May, and the Misses Alida Moore, of Carle; Clara Shellbarger, of Topeka, Kansas; Helen Moore, Mamie Wood, Laura Bower and sister, and Emma Strohm, and Messrs. Sherman McClelland, Logan Phillips, Giles Warren, Will Shellbarger, Will Wood and Chas. Wood and others participated in a picnic at the Haworth farm, west of the city, yesterday afternoon and evening.

Crematory Meeting.
The stockholders of the Decatur Crematory Company are requested to meet at the office of John A. Brown, in court house block, at 10 a. m., on Saturday, July 14th, to consider the question of locating the crematory buildings on the report of the committee.

J. C. TRAUBER,
C. L. GRAYWOLD,
